PARTY WITH WAGNER

One of the X-Factor's most controversial contestants ever will be performing in Maidstone this Friday night.

Brazilian entertainer Wagner Carrilho will strut his stuff at the Liquid Night Club in Lockmeadow for the television show's county town fans. The long-haired vocalist was voted out of the competition on Sunday night after a sing-off against Irish diva, Mary Byrne.

Wildman Wagner has constantly been in the national news since his arrival on our television screens just a few months ago.

EXCLUSIVE

BY JOE BILL

A TRIO of the UK's top comedians have launched a stinging attack on former Maidstone MP Ann Widdecombe.

Matt Lucas, star of cult BBC TV show Little Britain, radio comedienne Sue Perkins, and Argumental's Marcus Brigstocke, sent vicious accusations against the former Tory MP around the world through social networking site Twitter.

The comics each re-tweeted a message which said: "Widdy denies climate change, opposes abortion, women priests and equal rights for homosexuals. Enjoy her fking dancing..."

The cruel tweet was started by comedian Ray Peacock who has more than 1,000 followers himself, but once the renowned comics got involved the message went worldwide.

Peacock posted the message on his site at 4.42pm on Sunday night after Ann was again kept in the competition by the public.

But by Monday lunchtime the tweet was all over the internet with thousands of people having their say as the brutal message went viral.

The three comics alone have nearly 200,000 followers who will see the message flash up on their wall.

However, the former Maidstone MP didn't even know it had been said after disposing of her Twitter account in December 2009.

And Ann shrugged off the horrible tweets instantly and remains focussed on winning

Booze addiction stemmed from heiress' cruel Kent childhood

■ BY STEVE KNIGHT

GUINNESS heiress Ivana Lowell has revealed how her tragic upbringing in Kent set her on the path to a lengthy battle with alcohol addiction.

A direct descendant of Arthur Guinness, the 18th century founder of the iconic Irish brewery, 43-year-old Lowell endured a turbulent upbringing at her former home in Bearsted, near Maidstone.

And as she reveals in her new autobiography – Why Not Say What Happened? – the aristocrat's early years in the Garden of England were memorable for all the wrong reasons.

"I come from a chaotic family and we lived in this large house at Milgate Park," Lowell said.

"The parents stayed in one half of the house and the children in the other, but I was molested by my nanny's husband and was also very badly burned when I tripped over a kettle lead while playing in the kitchen one day.

"It was rather traumatic living there because I was scarred inside and out. But I got through it and came out the other side."

Despite such a troubled childhood Lowell says she still has fond memories of her time in Kent, most notably of riding horses through the countryside and of attending Beechwood Sacred Heart School in Tunbridge Wells. She also enjoyed visiting her grandmother Maureen Guinness at her Owl House home in Lamberhurst.

However, the death in 1977 of Ivana's father Robert Lowell – whom she later discovered was not her real dad – and subsequent death of her 18-year-old sister Natalya pushed her over the edge into the world of drink and drugs.

"It was difficult to write about everything, but it was my shrink who encouraged me," said Lowell. "It turned out to be very cathartic. It was also an opportunity to respond to things that had been written which I didn't think were accurate or fair."

"I also wanted to help people because there's a lot in the book about child abuse and alcoholism. Sometimes when you're a victim you feel like you're on your own, so it's helpful to realise there are other people who have been through the same thing."

In addition to being married to Robert Lowell, Ivana's mother had also previously tied the knot with painter Lucian Freud – grandson of the psychiatrist Sigmund Freud – and the composer Israel Citkowitz.

Yet despite the publisher's description of her family as "wild and bohemian", Lowell insists she is happy to be associated with them.

"I have a daughter of my own now and live a much quieter life these days," she said. "But I love my family and can't imagine being with anyone else."

• Why Not Say What Happened? is available now through Bloomsbury, priced £18.75.

Ann's strictly loving it

BBC's Strictly Come Dancing show.

When asked if she would like to comment on the message Ann said: "Not really. Everyone is entitled to their own opinion."

Widdy has very much been in the spotlight since being announced as a contestant on the show and the public's votes have kept the Tory in the running with just six dancers left in the competition.

Ann said: "I am loving every minute."

Race attack victim cabbie shares trauma

A CAB driver who was attacked, racially abused and accused of being a member of the Taliban said he is still traumatised by the incident more than a year later.

Mohammad Hossain, 34, from Gillingham, was left unconscious and with facial injuries following the attack in Medway in September last year.

A 26-year-old man was jailed for four-and-a-half years for the attack.

Mr Hossain, originally from Bangladesh, told the BBC he found it hard to believe that someone could treat a person in such a way.

The attack took place after he picked up two men and two women in Maidstone who wanted to go to Medway. As Mr Hossain drove he said he was subjected to verbal abuse.

The driver said he was attacked and punched after he stopped his car and asked the group to get out and added he still has a scar from the jewellery worn by one of his attackers.

Mr Hossain has returned to work, but said he did not feel comfortable.

Police are clamping down on illegal taxis

COWBOY taxi drivers who pick up customers illegally are the focus of a police operation.

Maidstone Borough Council has joined forces with police to stop both private car firms and Hackney carriages braking the terms of their licenses.

Private hire vehicles are only allowed to pick up passengers who have pre-booked their journey, by phone or in person at an office. While Hackney carriages or 'black cabs' can pick up off the street in the areas for which they are licensed.

The crackdown operation is being carried out across Maidstone, Sevenoaks and Tunbridge Wells.

Two hours before police arrive

VICTIMS of crime in Maidstone can wait more than two hours for police to arrive, new statistics have revealed.

Latest response figures have highlighted that police can take more than 120 minutes to get to victims of serious offences like burglary and assault.

Since October 2007 there have been 37,614 incidents involving assault, burglary, mugging, car theft, breaking and entering and anti-social behaviour. Police arrive to help the victims, on average, 92mins later.

But during the last six months, between May and October this year, the response times for Kent Police has increased to 134 minutes following the victim's call for help.

However, Chief Superintendent Matthew Nix, area commander for Mid Kent, believes these figures can be misleading.

He said: "I do not consider criminal damage, mugging, assault, burglary or car theft to be categorised as low level crime, as incidents of this nature have a significant impact on both the victims and wider community. We take reports of these incidents very seriously and they, like all public calls to the police, will be assessed according to their urgency."

"The response times for police in Mid Kent, have to comply with force targets, which are being met in full."

"If a crime is in progress or there is a threat to life it will be graded as 'immediate' and means we aim to attend the call within 15mins (20 for rural calls). At Mid Kent we are currently beating force targets by attending 95.5 per cent of urban calls and 93.2 per cent of rural calls within these times."

Ch Supt Nix added: "If prompt attendance is required, which is not urgent, then a call will be graded as 'High' and officers will attend as soon as they can, depending on the call demand at the time."

"If they haven't been able to attend within an hour the victim will be contacted to update them."

"If the call is not graded as immediate or high, we aim to make contact with the victim within 24 hours, but at a time convenient for the victim."

"The majority of our calls within this Freedom of Information request data will fall within the category of scheduled calls and could take up to 24 hours to be resolved. Therefore, our average attendance time bears no relation to our actual capability to get to incidents, as we are responding instead to the needs of the caller."

Polytunnels bid sparks fears for our countryside

■ BY JON COATES

CAMPAIGNERS have vowed to fight plans for the largest area of polytunnels in the country.

And they have raised fears the scheme could set a precedent for other huge polytunnel plans across the UK.

Hugh Lowe Farms, based in Mereworth, wants permission to install 165 hectares - the equivalent of 200 football pitches - of clear plastic-covered tunnels in any one-year, across a total area of 557ha.

The area of potential polytunnels will stretch between the six parishes of Hadlow, Watlington, Kings Hill, Mereworth, East Peckham and West Peckham.

But the proposals have received fierce criticism from opponents who say it will ruin the rural landscape and have started a campaign group in an effort to block the plans - and prevent similar schemes from popping up elsewhere.

Leader of the Lib Dem opposition on Kent County Council Cllr Trudy Dean said: "This application should concern everyone who enjoys the countryside and its beauty."

But those behind the scheme say failure of the application could cost jobs, and insist the polytunnels already exist and the application is just to meet planning requirements.

Last Wednesday, more than 100 people attended a public meeting to discuss the controversial application.

CHANGE TO LANDSCAPE: Protestors fear more polytunnels could follow this application

Of the potential 165ha under polytunnels at any one time, 91 - the size of 110 football pitches - would be permanent and remain in place all year, with crops in grow-bags or troughs on tables. The remaining 74ha would be under temporary tunnels.

The choice of which fields within the 557ha area to cover would be decided by the farmer, if the planning application is approved.

The public can comment on the application until January 31, and the planning committee of Tonbridge and Malling Borough Council is expected to consider the application in February or March.

Residents concerned about the size of the proposed polytunnels and their visual impact on the countryside have formed a campaign group called Landscape Matters.

They are supported by Cllr Dean and Simon Evans from Protect Kent.

Cllr Dean said: "I fear its enormous size will create a precedent for farmland across Kent and indeed the country."

Marion Regan, who owns Hugh Lowe Farms with her husband, stressed the application is not for new polytunnels but simply to continue using "the area of tunnels this farm has used for several years".

Developments in other parts of the country have highlighted how large areas of polytunnels require planning permission.

Polytunnels which have been in the same place for more than four years are immune from enforcement action and this applies to 33ha at the farm in Mereworth, but permission is needed for the other 165ha used by the farm.

Mrs Regan said: "Our farm supports skilled, full-time horticultural jobs like tractor drivers and people who understand fruit husbandry."

"These are the sort of skills this area, the Garden of England, is famous for and it would be a tragedy if they were to die out, especially as this country needs to be able to grow what we eat here instead of importing it."

Mrs Regan also denied that her planning bid would set a precedent for large polytunnels nationwide, saying every application has to be considered on its own merits.

FANS FLOCK TO MEET JORDAN

WEEK Street in Maidstone was awash, not with snow, but with fans of glamour model Katie Price last Friday.

The mega celebrity, who is also known as Jordan, was in town to sign copies of her fourth autobiography, You Only Live Once.

Katie had fans queuing down the high street during her hour-long signing session at the Maidstone WHSmith store.

On the social networking site Twitter, Katie said: "On way to Maidstone whs signing xxx..."

Security staff had to be used to make sure the store didn't become overcrowded as fans waited in the freezing weather to see the star.

County Hall wants extra £25m in savings 'shock'

■ BY MARIJKE COX

FINANCE chiefs at County Hall have revealed public services will come under even more pressure - with an additional £25 million needed in savings over the next two years.

The authority had initially forecast a £136m budget shortfall for 2011-13, but now predictions of Government grant reductions combined with additional spending pressures has pushed the figure up to more than £161m.

The amount forms part of the £340m savings needed at Kent County Council over the next four years.

It is likely to mean residents are asked to pay for some services they previously received for free.

Authority bosses had not expected such a large shortfall in the first two years after councils nationwide had been told to expect Government grant cuts of seven per cent every year for the next four years.

KCC cabinet member for finance Cllr John Simmonds said the higher percentages came as a shock after lower predictions were announced at a KCC meeting just last month.

"What took us by surprise was we were expecting a grant reduction of 7.25 per cent in the first year, but it is just over 10.1 per cent for 2011-12," he said. "For 2012-13 it is 8.6 per cent and in the third year 3.3 per cent and then 7.9 per cent."

"It puts pressure on us because around 18 per cent is going to come out in the first two years. It's accelerated the savings we were going to make over the four years."

Cllr Simmonds admitted it was going to be difficult to take money out of the existing budget.

"We've already had £15.5m knocked out this year - we've got some considerable pressures," he said.

A report setting out the council's overall financial challenge was due to be discussed by cabinet members at a meeting on Monday, just two weeks before Government announces exactly how much KCC will get in grants.

The paper looks at "unavoidable" budget pressures and outlines the expected reductions.

Cllr Simmonds said the council had looked at the services it provides, how they are delivered, and what customers expect. He said residents could have to start paying for some services that were previously paid for by the council - but it was too early to say which services would be hit.

"We need to look at things that people value and what things we can cut back on," he said.

He stressed that children's social services, elderly provision and adult social services were a key priority.

KCC is currently considering whether to close a number of council-run care homes for elderly people.

"The number of referrals after the Baby P case have gone up because people are taking no chances, which puts KCC under tremendous pressure," he said. "We've also got a rapidly growing adult population."

He added that clower working with other organisations could lead to greater savings in this area.

Cllr Simmonds said district and borough councils will find the reductions "extremely painful" and admitted KCC was luckier due to its size.

"If we can weather the next few years we'll have smoother waters," he said. "Locally people are aware of the changes. Communities can help by looking at some of the things we do and help provide this on a smaller level. We have considerable voluntary input in Kent."

SEX GANG: Martin Brusch, Ivan Gujda and Dusan Horvat admitted human trafficking for sexual exploitation

Women held as sex slaves see captors jailed

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

TWO terrified women who were duped into the sex trade by human traffickers were finally able to escape from their captors' clutches at a Maidstone hotel, a court has heard.

The victims were forced to have sex with men for money across England during a sickening 17-day period, after being flown into the UK from the Czech Republic.

Three members of the sex slave gang were today jailed at Maidstone Crown Court last week for human trafficking for sexual exploitation offences.

The court heard how the victims were approached in the Czech Republic to fly to the Republic of Ireland to participate in sham marriages.

When they arrived in Dublin on Monday, June 7, they met by a group of foreign males and one of the girls was forced to have sex with one of these men.

They were then moved into the UK, and travelled from Belfast to Stranraer, Scotland.

Over the next 17 days they were driven across England and forced to have sex with men for money.

Their nightmare only ended on Thursday, June 24, when one of the women convinced a Maidstone hotel manager to call police.

Officers arrested seven people at the scene. Three were later charged, with no further action being taken against the other four.

Martin Brusch, 31, of no fixed abode, and Dusan Horvat, 37, of Folkestone, both pleaded guilty to two counts of trafficking persons into the UK for sexual exploitation, and two counts of trafficking persons within the UK for sexual exploitation, and were each sentenced to 10 years in prison.

Ivan Gujda, 38, of Chatham, pleaded guilty to two counts of human trafficking for sexual exploitation within the UK and was sentenced to three years in prison.

DC Alison Howland, of the Kent and Essex Serious Crime Directorate, who investigated the case, said: "I am pleased with the result of today's case, which brings a conclusion to many months of hard work by our investigation team.

"This was a complex case with significant enquiries being carried out in Ireland and the Czech Republic, as well as throughout the UK.

"I would like to thank the authorities in both these countries who have given us fantastic co-operation, enabling us to gather significant evidence against the offenders, which undoubtedly led to their guilty plea.

"I would also like to thank the victims for coming forward and giving us their vital testimony, which enabled us to bring this group to justice and prevent other women from falling prey to this trafficking ring. This has been an excellent example of working together to protect victims from this vile trade."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Festive car crime warning

SHOPPERS are being warned not to leave valuables on display in their cars in case they give a thief an early Christmas present.

The safety message was made by the Safer Maidstone Partnership as part of their seasonal crackdown on car crime.

Signs will go up in car parks warning people that if they 'display, they will pay' to remind them to safeguard their possessions.

John Grant, Crime Prevention Manager for the Community Safety Unit said: "We are focusing this week on thefts from cars, which historically have risen as a result of the festive season.

"Bags of shopping or handbags should not be left on view in cars."

Parking attendants and town centre police patrols will be taking registrations of cars displaying valuables and a letter will be sent to the owners explaining how to protect themselves from car crime.

Boroughs share and save

MAIDSTONE and Tunbridge Wells borough councils will share services in a bid to save more than £2 million over the next five years.

The agreement will see revenues and benefit departments come together from January 2011.

Chris Garland, leader of Maidstone Borough Council and Roy Bullock, leader of Tunbridge Wells Borough Council said: "The two councils have to find new ways to operate some of their core services.

The merger forms part of a wider programme of co-council works identified to make services more effective and cost-efficient.

Solar homes proposed

PLANS to build 20 homes in Ringlestone will be submitted to council bosses next week.

The application will see solar-powered homes built on a site off Dickens Road where the Finch Court flats once stood.

Golding Homes' regeneration manager, Keith Mandy, said: "Conversations with local community members have been positive, and we look forward to further consultation."

The new homes will boast modern features including solar water heating, thermally efficient windows and good sound insulation. The homes also each have a private garden.

HIV testing clinic

HEALTH experts are today (Wednesday) offering HIV tests with on-the-spot results. The testing will be carried out at a mobile clinic at Sessions House, Maidstone, between 6pm and 8pm.

The Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust and NHS West Kent HIV awareness event coincides with World Aids Day.

Dr Lesley Navaratne, consultant in Genito-Urinary Medicine and HIV, said: "Rapid testing reduces the stress and anxiety of waiting for results, helps people who are not aware they have HIV and protects people from infection."

Dr Faiza Khan, consultant in public health, said: "We want to encourage people to come along so they can speak to sexual health staff, ask for guidance and information, and talk about any concerns relating to HIV and other sexual health issues. All questions and concerns will be treated sensitively and confidentially."

"HIV is no longer a death sentence. It is a long-term treatable condition and we hope that by raising awareness we can reduce the stigma surrounding it."

Armour-plated dedication of 'Spreaders'

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

SOLDIER James Excell has followed in his great-grandfather's footsteps by serving on the front line as a 'Tankie'.

The 25-year-old corporal, from Maidstone, was inspired to join the 2nd Royal Tank Regiment by the achievements of his ancestor, an armoured vehicle commander who led a tank crew in World War One.

Cpl Excell – known as 'Spreaders' to his unit – has been deployed in Helmand province, Afghanistan, in what is his second tour of duty. The former Hanrahan's chef said the country had changed since his last tour in 2006.

"The place has definitely changed for the better," he said. "The capital, Lashkar Gah, was much more violent when I was last here. The locals have changed their attitude towards us, they're a lot more positive than last time."

While the people of Lashkar Gah may have become friendlier, Cpl Excell said the challenges of crewing a fighting vehicle in Helmand have remained the same.

He said: "As a vehicle commander, I am constantly thinking about the state of my crew, ammunition and supplies."

"I'm also concentrating on looking for any signs of improvised explosive devices and checking on my gunners' arcs of fire."

"I've also got to keep an eye on my driver, checking he's still in the safe lanes. On top of that I've got to monitor the other vehicles on the patrol."

Cpl Excell is one of 300 Tankies deployed to Afghanistan this winter to support the light infantry of 16 Air Assault Brigade.

The Tank Regiment is also involved in providing assistance to the Afghan National Police.

Cpl Excell also has additional responsibilities as a signals specialist. He spends the time between patrols accounting for and maintaining the complex radios they need for communications when out on the ground.

When he's not in Helmand, Cpl Excell is a fan of adventurous sports, he likes bungee-jumping, skydiving, zip-lining and skiing. While in the Royal Tank Regiment he has achieved his alpine skiing instructor qualification.

TOUR OF DUTY: Cpl James Excell in Afghanistan

On the more conventional side of sports, Cpl Excell loves his football and used to play for Vinters Park.

QUESTION & ANSWER

TRACIE DEMPSTER

Q Who are chYps?

A chYps started in 1994 as the Children and Young People's Service of EllenorLions Hospices, providing full hospice care to families in north west Kent (Swanley, Dartford, Gravesham) and the London Borough of Bexley. The West Kent Primary Care Trust (PCT) has now asked chYps to work in partnership with them to expand its service into mid and south west Kent (Maidstone, Sevenoaks, Tonbridge and Tunbridge Wells).

Q What does chYps do?

A chYps enables children and young people with life-limiting and life-threatening conditions to receive clinical care and support in their place of choice, which is overwhelmingly in their own home. In doing this, we support and care for the whole family.

Q Don't Heart of Kent and Hospice in the Weald do this?

A No. They are excellent adult hospices but do not provide care to under 18s.

Q Where is the chYps hospice located?

A We are not a residential hospice, so we are not located in a single building. We provide full hospice care in the family's own home.

Q Do families prefer to receive hospice care in their own home?

A Overwhelmingly so. When a child has a serious condition and may not live into adulthood the family faces a difficult time.

So, chYps offers a different approach to palliative and end of life care. Instead of the child coming to the hospice, the hospice comes to them. This allows the child and mum, dad, brothers and sisters to stay together.

Q Do patients get the same clinical care as in a residential hospice?

A Yes, and more. chYps offers a seamless service of care for children and young people, from birth to 19 years; working closely with a variety of care providers to give chemotherapy, palliative care, end of life care and a wide range of other support services.

We can offer short breaks for over 14s in the EllenorLions Hospice in Northfleet and, for young people entering adulthood, our transition service helps them move smoothly into adult care. We call this full hospice care – in the family's own home.

Q Doesn't Demelza Hospice do this?

A No. Demelza is an eight-bedded, soon to be 10-bedded, residential hospice offering excellent respite and end of life care to families. However, the majority of families want to receive the same level of hospice care in their own home, and chYps enables them to do so. So we complement each other: chYps and Demelza work closely together.

Q How much does it cost a family to receive the service?

A Nothing. All our services are provided free of charge.

Q So, will all children with life limiting/life threatening conditions be able to receive chYps care?

A That is our aim. We have initial funding for two nurses so we shall start by focusing on providing end of life care to those children and young people in most urgent need, but we hope to raise sufficient funds to start phasing in our full service by the end of 2011.

Q What can people do to help?

A Just about everyone can do something. A start would be to help spread the word: tell family, friends, neighbours, the person sitting next to you on the bus or train all about us.

Some people might like to help raise money to enable us to take our full service to all the children, young people and their families that need us. You could give money yourself, or take part in a sponsored event.

Others may like to become directly involved by volunteering to help directly in patient care.

Just visit www.chyps.org and sign up to become a chYps champion.

FULSTON MANOR goes FUL-TASH!!

One man every hour dies from prostate cancer in the UK.

The staff and students from Fulston Manor School, Sittingbourne, are playing their part in supporting this very important cause. Those that can, are growing a moustache for the whole month of November.

They are hoping to raise over £500 from activities in school and donations on-line.

The charity is the Movember Foundation in support of The Prostate Cancer Charity, both of whom have been responsible for raising the profile of this fatal men's health issue.

'Dartford toll charges won't be scrapped'

■ BY STEVE KNIGHT

DARTFORD crossing toll charges will remain "for the foreseeable future" after the Government admitted it cannot do without the £17 million annual income they provide.

Last month it was announced the cost of using the crossing may rise to £2.50 for car drivers by 2012, despite motorists being promised the levy would be scrapped once the cost of building the QEII Bridge had been met.

But during a Commons debate on congestion at the crossing this week, transport minister Mike Penning said the removal of the tolls was not an option.

He said: "We are in really difficult economic times, and the £17m-a-year gross revenue the tolls take in is an important part of the money available for the infrastructure and transport network for the whole country."

But Mr Penning did reiterate the Government's commitment to reduce congestion and pollution at the crossing by removing the barriers and by looking into the possible construction of a third Thames crossing.

He said that most businesses would rather pay an extra 50p if it meant their drivers were no longer being caught up in huge tailbacks.

"The toll booths are what is really holding up the traffic," he added. "The delays are being caused by people trying to find change, not realising they have to pay, or losing their DART-Tag."

"If we remove the toll booths altogether so people can drive across the bridge or through the tunnels, that delay will be removed."

"The London congestion charge uses vehicle number plate recognition, and it works well. We intend to use that technology to remove the barriers at the north and south of the crossing."

Last Tuesday's debate was secured by Dartford Tory MP Gareth Johnson, who said: "We have recently had an announcement that the price of the tolls should be increased. I cannot accept that extra levy on the motorist, who is feeling fairly beleaguered in this particular part of the country."

"The congestion at the Dartford crossing has united Dartford against the current toll booths system. Local people despise the impact it has had on the area, as we have had nothing but misery, congestion and pollution as a result."

Meanwhile, the transport minister revealed during the debate that it was unlikely the DART-Tag residents' discount scheme would be extended to areas outside of Dartford.

Cutting back the competition

SPORTS leaders have launched an attack on the Government for scrapping school sports funding as thousands of campaigners demand ministers rethink the move.

Kent representatives from the Schools Sports Partnerships (SSP) questioned what kind of message was being sent to the international community ahead of the Olympics and World Cup 2018 bid by cutting funding for the SSP programme.

The globally-acclaimed project encourages competitive opportunities within schools and has seen the number of Kent students taking part in sport twice a week soar.

But the national programme has become one of the many casualties of Government's spending cuts, with plans to axe its entire £162 million funding.

Thousands of students and staff at the county's schools have thrown their weight behind a campaign to save the scheme by signing a petition urging ministers to rethink proposals.

It will be handed in to education secretary Michael Gove on Monday, December 6.

HITTING BACK: Sports leaders slam the Government for sport funds cuts

Kent has 15 SSPs, which encourage sport by introducing new activities, offering competitive opportunities and creating links between communities and clubs.

Peter La Rossignol, competition manager for the Mid-Kent, Ashford, Sheppey and Sittingbourne area, said people were shocked and saddened.

"Government expects this country to do well at a high level across a range of different sports, but how can we with these cuts?" he said.

"I can't see how the country is expected to win the World Cup bid when competitive sport at grassroots level is cut."

"The cuts will only mean more spent on the NHS in a few years time dealing with obesity and heart disease."

Mr La Rossignol said just recently 850 pupils from 38 different schools ran in a cross-country event at Leeds Castle.

"Schools can't organise big events like that, they don't have the time or money," he said.

A mass campaign has been launched by the Thanet SSP and thousands of people in the area have signed a petition against the cuts.

Junior sports leader Paul Ayers, from Hartsdown College in Margate, said: "The Government wants more young people to get involved with sports and as youth leaders we are working hard to achieve this – and then it changes the rules by saying it is going to cut such a fantastic scheme."

But sports minister Hugh Robertson, MP for Faversham and Mid-Kent, defended the Government's decision, saying: "I understand that nobody wants to see any money cut from school sport. However, we have to deal with the national economic crisis that we have inherited which is costing the country £120 million in debt interest payments every day."

Uni staff support protests

LECTURERS from the University of Kent voiced their support for the second wave of student protests held last week.

Professor of urban studies Phil Hubbard and employment relations expert Dr Samantha Lynch were among 295 scholars who spoke out over planned tuition fee increases in a letter to the Guardian newspaper.

It read: "We support the day of protest last Wednesday following the magnificent demonstration by university and school students and by university staff on November 10."

"We are utterly opposed to the destruction of broad-based, critical education and its replacement by education for the market that is enshrined in the Browne report."

"We are defending not just our jobs but the values which brought us into higher education, reflecting the wider significance of education to society."

About 10,000 students took part in a series of marches and gatherings across the country on Wednesday, December 24 but violence flared for the second time in a fortnight.

The young people are angry that from 2012 universities will be able to charge tuition fees of up to £9,000 – almost three times more than the current cap.

The letter continues: "The planned increase in fees means the effective removal of higher education for working people. The coalition has no mandate for its ideologically driven class rule – the anger of students is no surprise."

"We intend to fight them to defend social science, humanities and the arts, and to protect higher and further education for all."

DEGREE DAY: Christ Church stall at MidKent

Aiming even higher

UNIVERSITIES set up stall at MidKent College in a bid to entice students onto higher education courses.

The degree day – the first of its kind at the college's Maidstone campus at Oakwood Park – was attended by the University of Greenwich, the University of Kent, Canterbury Christ Church University, the European School of Osteopathy, Medway School of Pharmacy and the Open University.

Uni reps highlighted the advantages of keeping your university education closer to home in light of the coalition Government's decision to allow universities to charge fees of up to £9,000 a year.

"It makes sense in this climate to pull our local providers together," said Rebecca Attwood, leader of learning support at MidKent's Maidstone campus.

"We have quality higher education provision right on our doorstep. What students need are more flexible and pragmatic ways of achieving degree-level training, such as part-time options that allow them to live at home and hold down a job while studying at the same time."

Radiology insight on x-ray discovery anniversary day

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

YOUNG students were given the inside story on x-rays while spending the day in a Maidstone hospital's radiology department.

Year 11 and 12 Valley Park and Simon Stock pupils visited Somerfield Hospital and were given the chance to see radiographers demonstrate the radiology machines and were even allowed to x-ray an object brought in from home.

The field trip was timed to coincide with World Radiology Day, held on the anniversary of Wilhelm Roentgen's discovery of x-rays in 1895.

Each year, diagnostic and therapy radiographers hold events and open days to commemorate his work. It is also hoped the day helps raise awareness of what radiographers do.

Hands-on

Radiology manager Cheryl Beames said: "It was an opportunity for the students to get a real hands-on experience of radiology, and a chance for us to watch potential radiographers of the future in action."

"The day was educational and fun and gave the students an insight into what could be a very rewarding career."

"They enjoyed seeing their chosen items become x-ray images and it will be a lasting reminder of their day here."

Valley Park's assistant headteacher, Stephen Cartwright, said: "This has been an eye-opening experience for the students, who learned about a career they may not have considered. "It's been good for them to go into the work-

SKELETON CREW: Radiographer Nada Tappouni explains the findings in a chest x-ray to pupils Joanne and Leah place and see the team at Somerfield Hospital in action. I know this kind of learning and experience brings a new perspective for the students as they look to decide on their chosen careers."

The first x-ray images were captured in 1895 after a series of studies by mathematicians and physicists prompted Wilhelm Roentgen to begin investigating x-rays as part of his own experimentation with vacuum tubes.

Roentgen detected a certain wavelength of electromagnetic radiation, realising that the rays allowed the observer to 'see' into and through objects. Using his wife as the subject of his investigations, Roentgen captured images of her hand which clearly displayed the structure of her bones.

developing confidence and individual talents

Frustrated to know that your child could succeed but is making slow progress?

Is it because of going unnoticed in a large school or a large class size?

Is your child lacking the confidence to flourish?

At Dover College, we are as keen as any other school to cater for the most able pupils and do it well. However, our recent inspection highlighted our great ability as a school to enable our more average pupils to achieve far better than their potential suggested on entry. By offering boys and girls timely affirmation and appropriate challenges in a caring environment, many of them surprise their parents and, more importantly, themselves with their achievements.

Dover College welcomes pupils at any time of the year if there is a place available.

Five-year pet ban for owner of starving dog

Cruel dog owner deserved jail time

Animal cruelty cases like the one featured in last week's Yourmaidstone drive me crazy.

Clearly Mr Fossett could not be bothered to provide suitable levels of food, water and medication for his dog, which begs the question 'why get a dog?'

I am glad Mr Fossett has been left with a hefty £4,000 fine but in my opinion he should be jailed.

If he neglected a child the way he neglected that poor dog then there is no question that he would be serving a very long prison sentence indeed.

Quite how anyone can sit back and take no action when their dog is unable to stand is beyond me.

I hope Henry finds a good home with owners who will love him and look after him.

And I hope no other animals find themselves under the care, or lack of, of Mr Fossett.

High speed rail just in time if it's true

I hope the rumours surrounding Maidstone's inclusion onto the High Speed rail network are true. What a difference it would make to the town.

The service into London is terrible at present and takes far too long.

With the new High Speed service, and the shorter journey time, Maidstone commuters would finally have some train news to smile about.

This comes after years of fare increases coinciding with a steady decline in value-for-money.

The knock-on effects for Maidstone would be welcome also.

We don't really need to listen to Labour leader Ed Miliband for four years, says Gary Wright

LABOUR leader Ed Miliband chose Gillingham as the place to convince the country he is the man who can build a party people will want to vote for again.

I was surprised he chose Kent. No one could see the county as a Labour stronghold, but by the same token it's counties like Kent where he will have to convince people he has something to offer.

At the moment it really doesn't matter what Labour says it would do on this, or what its policy is on that – the party isn't in power, so why should anyone listen?

Red, as he's affectionately known, has other problems too. The mess inherited by Cameron and Clegg was bigger than anyone could have imagined.

So, criticism by Ed and his shadow cabinet is easily overcome: Labour would have had to do the same or it's Labour's fault anyway.

My gut feeling is the party is over-reacting to its General Election loss with its new-found taste for humble pie, admissions of how terrible and arrogant it became and beating itself up to win our love again.

It's pretty simple really.

Firstly, people had had enough of Gordon Brown. Despite being the man who found a way through the banking crisis for world leaders, he was also responsible for getting Britain too deeply into the mess in the run up to it. Plus he wasn't good on telly and seemed a bit of an angry bully off it.

If there is a story in your area you think we should be covering contact the news editor, Simon Robinson, on 01303 817185 or email him on the details above. If you want to be the next Maidstone blogger then all you have to do is submit an article to us (of around 550 words) and email it to the editor. Join the march to stop climate change

Demonstrators from Kent will be going to go to London for the annual Climate March on Saturday, December 4, assembling at Speaker's Corner, Hyde Park at noon.

Politicians, scientists and campaigners are also preparing to go to Cancun, Mexico for crucial Climate Change talks.

The scientific and political consensus about the need to deal with human-induced Climate Change has never been wider than it is today.

If we reduce emissions, insulate our buildings and introduce safe energy technologies we can employ thousands of people and resist Climate Change at the same time. Climate Change means more moisture is held in the atmosphere, creating a likelihood of more extreme weather events.

Kent's coastline and estuaries are very vulnerable to significant changes unless cuts of about 90 per cent in greenhouse gas emissions are achieved by 2050.

But Kent County Council's Local Transport Plan does not even propose measures to cut traffic year on year, in order to cut emissions.

Only 14 out of 27 EU countries are likely to meet their current emissions targets. EU leaders have agreed the major step of seeking cuts in the two fastest growing sectors of greenhouse gas emissions, aviation and shipping, but so far without resources to achieve this.

We have to do better.

Steve Dawe, former lecturer in environmental policy and a current lecturer in public policy

Paws for thought with Christmas gifts

This Christmas, millions of us will spend precious time and money choosing pointless gifts for people who don't really want them. So instead of following this crazy and costly routine, why not surprise someone instead with a much-needed gift in aid of poorly pets?

Vet charity PDSA has hundreds of 'virtual gifts' for sale this Christmas. And they are the perfect gift choice for someone in your life who loves animals. By purchasing a gift you help care for sick and injured pets across the UK. They are so simple to buy and once you've chosen your virtual present you can personalise an attractive greetings card too.

There's a wide range of gifts starting from as little as £13, which would pay for over 25 metres of bandages, right up to £1,800, which would buy an operating table. To browse the full range of presents available, visit www.wellvettedgifts.co.uk, but hurry the last order date is December 20.

As a charity we receive no government or lottery funding for our PetAid services, so we rely on the generosity of animal lovers to help raise the £50 million needed to care for poorly pets each year. So please help if you can.

ID cards battle over, but the war goes on

ID cards are being scrapped, and with them the National Identity Register and the ContactPoint Children's database – a success for NO2ID.

I would like to publicly thank all those who supported and helped with our campaign – not just in my own branch but across East and Mid-Kent.

So, is it all over? No. A bureaucratic obsession with ID and information sharing goes on, and so do we. Your finances, your travel by plane or car, who you call and email, soon your medical records ... all are starting to be captured and made available for "mining".

A 2009 report looked at 46 big government database projects. It found more than half damage personal privacy or create other risks. Only two of those have since been cancelled.

We define the database state as the trend to manage society by collecting data, mass surveillance, an authoritarian oversight of all aspects of our lives. NO2ID continues to campaign against state identity management and the abuse of personal information, and for individual control of what is private.

Our campaigns concern a proposed centralised electoral register with local authority powers to cross-match data to track those who don't register, medical confidentiality and the NHS Spine (not yet rolled out in Kent: but coming), tracking travellers through e-passports and e-Borders, abuse of DNA records, snooping on internet and telephone use, and police logging of all car journeys using ANPR cameras.

The government needs some information to work, but they always take and use much more than they need. You may have to deal with them, but you can't say what they can do with that data.

In a few years it has become "normal" to be asked to provide ID, proof of address or other details by people who don't need them. More is officially gathered, cross-checked, passed on – even to other countries.

You should have the right to decide who knows what about you. "We know where you live" is an old threat. The database state means state control of personal identity – with or without ID cards.

Ian Taylor, NO2ID Local Group Co-ordinator (Dover)

Animals not answer for third world poor

Christian Aid, Oxfam and other aid agencies are once again tapping into public disquiet over the existence of plenty in the midst of hunger and asking you to make a Christmas gift of a farmed animal to an impoverished person in Africa, or in another of the world's poorest regions.

This is despite mounting evidence that animal farming is environmentally destructive; an inefficient user of agricultural land, water and energy; and that it generates disproportionately high volumes of global warming gases.

Because meat and milk production consume such high levels of precious resources, only communities with surplus wealth can afford them. A 'gift' of animals to destitute communities, who are without such resources, will simply impoverish them further.

It is far more rational to support such people in growing food that they can eat directly.

There is also the very real issue of animal suffering. Where people are unable to provide adequate food, water, shelter and veterinary care, animals get sick and die wretched deaths. This is the case, currently, in the drought-ravaged regions of Kenya.

Please support agencies that help people, animals and the environment. For details contact Animal Aid.

Mel's the lady in the lamp

ALADDIN

Thursday, December 2, to Sunday, January 9
Churchill Theatre, Bromley

CAST your mind back to 1997 if you can. Oasis and Blur rule the airwaves, Chris Evans was the king of Friday nights and the internet was little more than a twinkle in a nerd's pair of spectacles.

It was also the era when Melinda Messenger became a household name, seemingly out of nowhere.

The tabloid press latched on to the blonde bombshell, and in the blink of an eye she was a nation's sweetheart.

It was an advertising campaign for a regional window firm that set her on the path to celebrity status in 1997.

"It was a bit of a whirlwind to be honest," she said. "One moment I was advertising double glazing, the next I was on the phone to The Sun and they were asking me to be in the newspaper."

Labelled for a time as Britain's answer to Pamela Anderson, Melinda went out to Hollywood, where she spoke to the producers of Baywatch – the most successful show of the time.

They invited her to appear as one of Malibu's red swimsuit-wearing, bronzed goddesses, but she turned it down.

"I was offered a part but I didn't quite fancy it in the end. I was a little freaked out by the level of fame I'd achieved here, so to be that famous didn't appeal at the time.

"I was happy with how it was going and knew that if I went global there wouldn't be anywhere to hide! I just didn't really fancy it."

Now though, Melinda is starring in Aladdin as the powerful wish-granting Genie of the Lamp, at the Churchill Theatre in Bromley.

It is her sixth pantomime.

She said: "I always enjoy it. I think the Genie is one of the best parts to play. It's one either sex can play, but I think it works very well as a female part. You can really go to town with it, although I'd really like to be a pantomime dame one year, as they probably have the most fun of all the cast members. We have a few in this version of Aladdin.

"The rehearsals have been going really well. We're having a lot of fun and the two and a half weeks will fly by, I'm sure, and soon we'll be actually on stage in front of the audience, which is where the real fun takes place."

For 13 years Melinda has worked in a variety of roles, but really found her niche as a presenter and currently fronts Cowboy Builders on Five.

"That show has really worked well for me. I enjoy it as it is helping people who have had their homes ruined, and we put it right. I like that, being able to help someone with a TV show, it really makes you feel good about being involved in it."

Melinda says her own three children will be coming along to see their mum at the Churchill, when the show starts.

"They are just the right age now, so it will be good fun for them to come. My youngest was a bit too young the last time I was in one, but now she's very intrigued how I'm going to get out of the lamp," she said.

On motherhood, she said: "I love being a mum, it's amazing, but it's a lot of responsibility. Get a dog and then times it by a thousand and then you'll know. It changes your life totally, and it's a never-ending responsibility but a very wonderful one to have and I'm very lucky to have them."

Aladdin runs from December 2 to January 9, at the Churchill Theatre in Bromley.

Tickets are priced £18 to £25 and available by calling 08448 717 636 or visiting www.ambassador tickets.com/Bromley.

THAT'LL BE THE DAY

Monday, December 13, The Orchard Theatre, Dartford.

THE Nation's Favourite Rock 'n' Roll Show is coming to The Orchard Theatre.

That'll be the Day invokes the spirit of some of the greatest eras in popular music and will rock your socks off.

From Buddy Holly to Queen, versions of tracks by all your heroes are included.

The UK's most successful touring rock 'n' roll production, the legendary That'll Be The Day, returns with a new 2010 Christmas Show.

Trevor, Gary and the gang celebrate the festive season by bringing on back the good times with a combination of their unique comedy routines mixed with a non-stop line-up of all the best Christmas hits to produce a show with a real feel good party atmosphere.

Join in the cast and treat yourself to an early Christmas present, that will live in the memory this festive season.

Time Out magazine called it "the best rock 'n' roll show on the road!"

The performance starts at 7.45pm. Tickets are available at www.orchardtheatre.co.uk or by calling the box office 01322 220000.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

Friday, December 10, to Sunday, December 12, Leeds Castle, near Maidstone

CELEBRATE Christmas with The Chapterhouse Theatre Company's brand new adaptation of A Christmas Carol, the Charles Dickens classic.

This production is staged in a heated marquee on the Cedar Lawn and features Tiny Tim and Bob Cratchit, the father and son with little money for the festive period.

Ebenezer Scrooge and of course Marley the ghost will bring a sparkle of magic to your Christmas festivities.

The attitude of the miserly Scrooge is changed by the ghosts of Christmas past, future and present and he is made to realize the error of his ways, as well as be scared witless!

He slowly realises the situation that the less better off members of society deserve to be happy, in one of Dicken's most enduring stories.

The Victorian tale has been adapted for stage and screen over the years but this production promises to be up there with the best.

Leave your inner humbug at the door for this heart-warming yuletide story that is guaranteed to get you in the mood for a fine Christmas.

Evening performances take place at 7pm, and there is a matinee performance at 1pm on Friday, December 10. Tickets cost £15 adult; £12 for children; £12 concessions.

FINLEY QUAYE

Friday, December 10, Pizza Express, Maidstone

BACK in the mid to late 90s Finley Quaye made an interesting counterpoint to the heavily guitar-laden Britpop explosion with his fusion of reggae, pop, rock and soul.

His debut album Maverick A Strike is described by some critics as a masterpiece and it certainly captured a moment in time as he became one of the best known singer songwriters of that period.

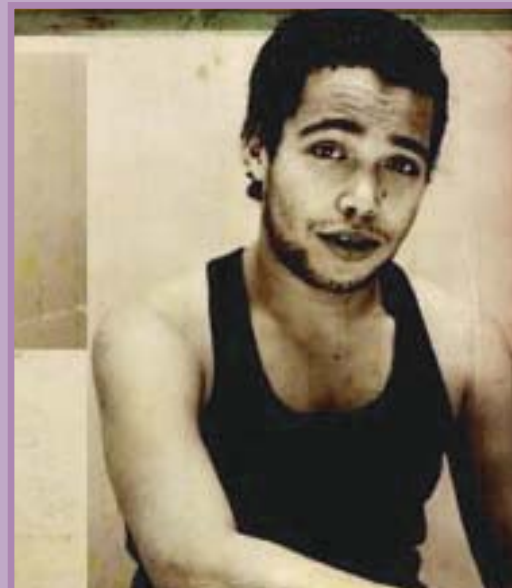

The Scottish-born man's following two albums were released on Epic, with Vanguard in 2000 and Much More Than Much Love in 2004.

Hits include Love Gets Sweeter, Sunday Shining, Even After All and he will showcase his distinctive slick vocal work as a former MOBO winner and Beth Orton collaborator.

Quaye, who still gigs regularly and is working on a new album with a brand new band, will be bowling up at Pizza Express in Maidstone for a gig as part of the chain's Pizza Express Live project.

Doors open at 7pm, and he takes to the stage at 8pm. Tickets are £26 per person.

Visit www.pizzaexpresslive.com to book tickets or call 0845 6027 017 to find out more.

THE MOUSE WHO SAVED CHRISTMAS

December 6 to December 21, The Brook Theatre, Chatham

THIS charming tale of a mouse who pulls out all the stops is aimed especially at children aged three to six.

The 50-minute story is packed with music and participation as you join Archie the intrepid mouse for his colorful and exciting adventures.

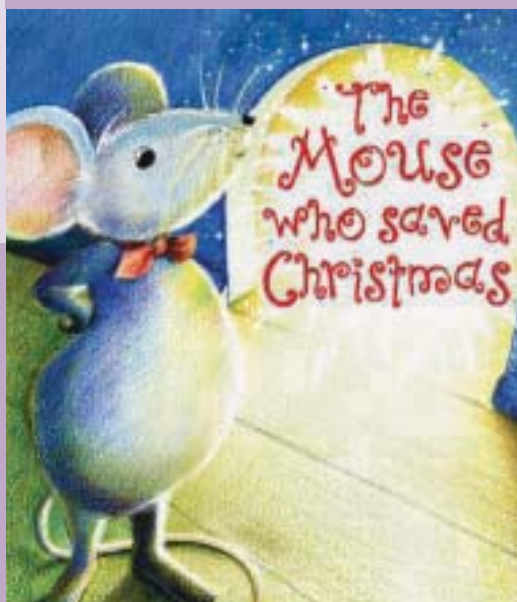

He needs help to make his Christmas party go with a swing, but someone has played a trick on Santa and he needs help to save the day.

The warm show will help fire the imaginations of youngsters and stimulate their senses, as they journey through different scenes in the main auditorium.

The play is the perfect way to get your children out of the house during the holidays.

It has been written, produced and directed by the theatre's resident professional performing arts companies: Play of Words Theatre Company, Icon Theatre and the Loop Dance Company.

Performances are at 11am, 1pm and 3pm each day. There are no performances on Friday, November 10 or Friday, November 17. Tickets cost £6.50 for children and adults. Group offers are available. Call 01634 338338 or visit www.whatsonmedway.co.uk

JAZZ NIGHT

Wednesday, December 8, Dickens World, Chatham

THE 144 Club presents a night of jazz at Dickens World as part of a Christmas Jazz Spectacular.

The event will feature trumpet player of some standing Henry Lowther.

He has been described by Jazz Journal as having no superiors amongst European jazzmen, and precious few anywhere.

Henry has worked on the jazz scene with star names such as Mike Gibbs, John Taylor, John Surman, Stan Tracey and Kenny Wheeler and was a member of the Peter King Quintet for eight years.

He is one of only two or three trumpeters who have played lead trumpet with both Gil Evans and George Russell.

Unusually for a jazz musician, Henry is also engaged frequently as a classical trumpeter by major symphony orchestras, and has recorded with Simon Rattle, the London Sinfonietta and the London Buss Virtuosi, of which he is a regular member.

He was also the featured flugelhorn soloist with the strings of the BBC Radio Orchestra until its demise.

He's joined by Roan Kearsley-Lawson (pictured), a supreme vibesman.

Don't miss a great selection of jazz including Christmas favourites such as Let Snow, Winter Wonderland, Sleigh Ride and more.

The show takes place in the Britannia Theatre at the attraction.

WIN! Loads of Hornby goodies

HORNBY is a household name and is famous as the UK brand leader in the model railway hobby.

The company's founder was Frank Hornby (1863-1936) who applied for a patent in 1901 to protect an invention he called 'Improvements in Toy or Educational Devices for Children and Young People'. Nobody then could have imagined how this product would influence the model railway hobby that we know today.

One lucky winner will win a Hornby Blue Rapier set, Scalextric digital lane change set and 12 visitor passes to have a day at the Hornby Visitor Centre at Margate for a fascinating journey through the history of Britain's best-loved toys.

For your chance of winning the great Christmas prize just answer this simple question:

Q) What is the first name of the British F1 driver Hamilton?

- Lewis
- David
- Jason

COMMUTER travel entered a new age during 2009 when the sleek and revolutionary Hitachi Class 395 entered service. This new state-of-the-art train with its twin power source motors quickly became the train of choice for those commuters who use the Southeastern service to London every day, saving those in the extremities of the service as much as 30 minutes or more of travel time.

The specially prepared three vehicle model in this set is resplendent in the distinctive blue livery of the prototype and is justifiably named the "Blue Rapier". Additional RailRoad coaches are available to extend the train to a full six car unit. Both power and dummy cars have headlights that operate in the direction of travel. The track circuit fits easily on the 1600 x 1270cm MidiMat and by adding Hornby Track Packs and accessory packs can soon be developed into a very effective model railway layout.

Contents

- Driver Trailer (Motorised) • Driver Trailer (Non-Motorised) • Two open coaches, (NB. Both vehicles have non-working pantographs).
- Track: 3rd Radius Starter Oval, Track Pack A (with point and buffer stop), P9000WWall Plug Transformer, R8250 Train Controller, R8206 Power Track, Hornby MidiMat (1600 x 1270).

THIS set allows you to race up to four cars at the same time (two cars are provided), performing amazing, realistic overtaking and braking manoeuvres. You can switch lanes at the touch of a button to overtake or block your opponent.

This set includes everything you need to get started with Scalextric Digital – it features an oval circuit and comes supplied with two Digital Chip installed cars.

Additional digital cars are available or you can easily convert most standard cars to run on digital layouts.

The super resistant Nissan GT-R and Aston Martin DBR9 feature change pick-ups and the Magnatraxion™ system to help them stay on the circuit.

Four cars can be raced simultaneously using the powerbase provided in the set or upgrade to the Advanced Six Car Digital Powerbase (C7042) for six car races plus a host of additional features.

Digital layouts are fully compatible with standard Scalextric track pieces.

Nowhere to run as past comes gunning for assassin Clooney

■ BY DAMON SMITH

BASED on the Martin Booth novel A Very Private Gentleman, director Anton Corbijn's follow-up to the award-winning Ian Curtis biopic Control is a meticulously crafted portrait of a man of violence trying to escape his grim fate.

Predictably, the antihero can only outrun the past for so long before it catches up with him and demands bloodthirsty redemption.

George Clooney is on screen for almost every frame in the title role, his face etched with weariness as an assassin who has grown tired of always looking over his shoulder.

Without the star power of its leading man, The American would struggle to find an audience outside the arthouse circuit.

It's an unremittingly bleak and slow-burning study of solitude, epitomised by a remarkable and protracted sequence in which the titular character drives towards the white light at the end of a long tunnel.

Corbijn refuses to cut away from inside the car as the white light expands, illuminating the driver until the entire screen is filled with blinding white.

Following a bungled assassination attempt in Sweden, hitman Jack (George Clooney) decides to abandon the killing game once and for all. He phones handler Pavel (Johan Leysen), who suggests that Jack should lay low in the Italian town of Castelvecchio.

"Don't talk to anyone and, above all, don't make any friends. You used to know that," scolds Pavel.

The hit man drives to the remote community and on the spur of the moment disobeys orders and sets up camp in nearby Castel Del Monte.

By day, Jack keeps himself busy by constructing a custom-made weapon for mysterious client Mathilde (Thekla Reuten).

STATE OF THE UNION: Thekla Reuten as Mathilde and George Clooney as Jack in The American

By night, he enjoys the carnal delights of local prostitute, Clara (Violante Placido). As Jack's paranoia takes hold, he seeks counsel from local holy man, Father Benedetto (Paolo Bonacelli). "A man can be rich if he has God in his heart," contends the priest.

"I don't think God is interested in me, Father," mocks Jack, fearing he is well past the point of no return.

The American is an engrossing character study, enlivened by explosions of violence including a night-time car chase that is as close as the film strays to an action set-piece.

Corbijn makes excellent use of the stunning European locations and keeps himself, and us, amused with interesting shots.

Thus, the throwaway image of a train arriving at a platform in Rome is captured as a reflection in one of the station display boards.

In the absence of bright colours in the film's palette, Clooney sparks a dazzling screen chemistry, in very different ways, with Placido and Bonacelli, the latter wearing his dog collar with conviction.

"You are American. You think you can escape history," laments Father Benedetto.

As Jack discovers, there is no escape.

PERIOD DRAMA: Andrew Buchan stars as the engaging barrister William Garrow

YOUR TV REVIEW

GARROW'S LAW: Sunday, 9pm, BBC1

■ BY JENNY ARMSTRONG

IF you have been missing your weekly Sunday evening hit of high period drama after the conclusion of ITV's hit show Downton Abbey, you can now breathe easy.

The good old BBC has dutifully replaced Downton, in exactly the same 9pm pre-work stress busting slot, with another hour long ode to times past. But unlike ITV's genial offering, which peddles history as a side order to drama, frocks and country piles, Garrow's Law tells the story of seminal events in the criminal justice system.

It follows the life of William Garrow (Andrew Buchan), a dashing young barrister kicking up a storm in the Old Bailey with his progressive views about justice and equality.

It seems Garrow, who later went on to be a judge and solicitor general for England and Wales, was the man who coined the phrase "innocent until proven guilty", used as a mantra in legal trials to this day. He also championed the adversarial system of justice still practised in courts today, where both the prosecution and the defence have their say in court.

As one would expect, Garrow's Law includes its fair share of court scenes with judges and barristers in full fig, as well as gasps and shouts from the public gallery rendered unlikely by their frequency and volume.

And they are great cases too – ones with shocking messages about the way justice was conducted and what used to be illegal.

In one case the captain of a slave ship is standing trial for insurance fraud because he threw 50 of his slaves overboard on false pretences, but the act is not treated as murder.

But court does not dominate the programme. There is a love interest in the form of the delicious Lady Sarah (Lyndsey Marshal), pretty frocks, big houses and several other story lines to keep the interest going.

Sadly, Garrow's Law does not glide through the period as effortlessly as Downton did. The budget is clearly lower, the cast not as stellar and some of the sets come off a bit more Blackadder than Bronte. And as this is now the second series of Garrow's Law, a lot of back story is assumed in terms of the relationship between Garrow and Lady Sarah, which adds a mite of confusion.

But all in all, it is a fair replacement to Downton and far more educational to boot.

Christmas made for Bad Manners

BAD BOYS: Buster and the gang are bringing their Christmas tour to the Quarterhouse

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

MY PARENTS were wrong – bad manners should not be forcibly discouraged, rather actively encouraged.

Sure, talking with your mouth full is disgusting, talking while someone else is speaking is obnoxious and those animals who stubbornly refuse to punctuate their utterings with neither 'please' nor 'thank you' deserve to be shot.

But bad manners are still a-ok in my book.

After all, how can you dislike one of the 1980s most widely-known two-tone acts, famed for hits such as Lip Up Fatty, My Girl Lollipop and the Can Can?

I'll accept that The Specials and Madness hold a larger chunk of the genre's place in my heart, but hearing Buster Bloodvessel and his boys never fails to lighten the mood of this hardened-hack.

So, imagine my Christmas Day Scrooge epiphany-esque delight when I learned Bad Manners were playing a festive gig at The Quarterhouse in Folkestone next month.

I was overjoyed.

A Quarterhouse spokesman was equally buoyant.

He said: "Buster Bloodvessel and his band of merry men – Bad Manners are joining us as part of their Special Christmas Tours, and they're not leaving til you've skanked like Santa Claus.

"Having played a fair bit locally, the band's live support around here remains second-to-none, as proven by their gig at this year's Lounge On The Farm festival, drawing a crowd just as big as that of the headline act Toots & the Maytals. And they put on just as good a show, if not better, to match it."

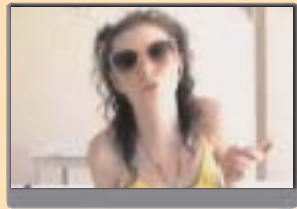

Support on the night comes from Max Splodge, hero of Splodgenessabounds and Two

Christmas magic is bigger and better at Disneyland

■ BY TOM WILKINSON

FALLING snow, a parade of princesses and a lollipop the size of a dinner plate – my three-year-old thought her Christmas had come early at Disneyland Paris, and perhaps it had.

The giant resort stretches out the festive period from the first weekend in November to January, with a spectacular show of glitz, glamour and razzmatazz, enough to warm the heart of this old Scrooge.

It's impossible not to get carried away with the fun when you see it through the eyes of a mesmerised daughter, who could not stop beaming after meeting Mickey Mouse and Disney's newest heroine Rapunzel, whose movie is not even out yet.

Rosie and I travelled to Disneyland Paris for a weekend break from St Pancras International. Soon we were at Marne la Vallée station, practically on the doorstep of the two theme parks and retail village.

Our Hotel New York was a couple of minutes' walk away, and we swiftly checked in next to the huge Christmas tree in the lobby.

But that tree was dwarfed by the 24-metre tall, 24-tonne pine that Disney unveiled at the start of its Christmas celebrations.

The tree, in the square of Main Street USA, boasts almost 500 bulbs, and the star at the top is lit every night in a charming ceremony.

Disney doesn't really do darkness, as more than a million lights illuminate the Town Square, Main Street and Sleeping Beauty's Castle over Christmas.

Main Street is the venue for the Dreams of Christmas Parade, when all your favourite cartoon heroes pass before your eyes on floats, in an all-singing, all-dancing spectacular.

Tom Wilkinson was a guest of Disneyland Paris which offers three-day packages via Eurostar in December from £412 per adult and £178 per child (7-11), and £65 per child (4-5, travel only). Under-7s stay and play free until December 31. Package including two nights' B&B at Disney's Hotel New York and three-day hopper tickets for Disneyland Park and Walt Disney Studios Park. Same package at Disney's Hotel Santa Fe from £287 per adult, £178 per child. Disneyland Paris reservations: 0844 800 8111 and www.disneylandparis.com

It proved to be a highlight for my little one, and for hundreds if not thousands of others who lined the parade route to get a good view.

When the float carrying all the princesses, including her all-time favourites Jasmine (from Aladdin) and Ariel (from the Little Mermaid), arrived, Rosie's eyes were on stalks.

For Christmas, Santa has been invited to set up his workshop, and children drop off letters for him.

There was so much going on, it would be easy to miss something great. Luckily, Rosie was too small for some of the more scary rides, as we could never have crammed everything in.

When we weren't star-spotting – tennis ace Rafa Nadal was visiting when we were there – Rosie and I tackled as many rides as we could.

Her undoubted favourite was a gentle boat ride called It's A Small World, which takes the visitor on a five-minute trip round the globe, populated with dancing dolls.

Over in the neighbouring Walt Disney Studios Park, Rosie loved the recent Slinky Dog Zigzag ride, for novice rollercoaster riders, and the Aladdin-themed Flying Carpets Over Agrabah, where you can make your carpet rise and fall as it spins.

Some rides get very busy, but quieten in the final hour of opening, as visitors with younger children leave early. Disney also uses a Thor Fastpass system which allows you to 'pre-book' a place on popular rides.

Disneyland Paris staff use both French and English and even the shows are bilingual.

As Santa waved us off, my daughter did not bat an eyelid when he wished us both a "Goodnight" and a "Bonne soiree".

Well, that's the magic of Disney.

MOTORS NEWS

Turbocharged Mondeo fuelling the fightback

FORD'S updated Mondeo line-up features a new hi-tech 1.6-litre turbocharged petrol EcoBoost engine.

It's part of a fightback by petrol against diesel through sporty performance, but with better economy and emissions than before.

This new 160PS (158bhp) 1.6 unit with a six-speed manual gearbox can average more than 40mpg and emits 158g CO2/km.

Its diesel rival, the 2.0TDCi, delivers more than 50mpg and 139g/km CO2, but offers little extra on company car tax or acceleration, and is £1,000 dearer.

Mazda hatch's diesel option for New Year

MAZDA has given its family hatchback Mazda3 model a New Year boost, with power, emissions and economy improvements to the 1.6 diesel (from £16,505).

Arriving in January, this model meets more stringent emissions regulations and features a new six-speed manual gearbox.

It should further drive Dartford-based Mazda UK's ambitions in fleet sales.

Low emissions allow it to escape road tax in year one and incur just £30 a year thereafter. It also averages in the mid-60s for mpg.

Desirable Peugeot star coupé boosts ratings

PEUGEOT'S stunning RCZ Coupé has confirmed its desirability by outperforming used car valuations from market watchers at CAP.

Fifteen examples of the new sporting icon, launched this summer, averaged 103 per cent of expected valuations at auction.

Bidding to secure this desirable stock, Peugeot dealers even went to £23,500 for a flagship example – 111 per cent of the CAP forecast. This is no surprise; the RCZ is good to drive, economical and affordable – new or secondhand.

CONTENDER: Volvo's S60 will give BMW's 3-Series a run for its money in the driving department – and anyone along for the ride can luxuriate in its first-class cabin comforts

The Volvo is a driver's car, too, but a nicer car for passengers. And this also applies to cabin ambience, which is first class.

Refinement is generally good at all speeds and particularly on motorways, though Volvo's five-cylinder diesel sounded raucous under pressure in our high-spec SE Lux review car.

Nevertheless, the popular D5 is well-matched to the new S60 with the 202bhp output delivering loads of low-down power for both press-on and lazy motoring situations and helped by a light and well-spaced six-speed gearbox allowing an average mpg of well over 50.

Even the all-new five-cylinder 163bhp 2.0-litre D3 engine has to work hard to better that.

The new S60 may be specified with a ground-breaking pedestrian detection package, which can stop a collision with a pedestrian up to 21mph, and dramatically reduce speed above that, with potentially life-saving consequences, but will people really cough up an extra £1,350 for such a selfless feature?

Standard S60 kit is generous and includes electronic climate and cruise controls, colour screen for the 'infotainment' system, steering wheel audio controls, alloys and leather-clad wheel and gearshift.

Estate agents welcome new licensing scheme

A NEW licensing scheme for estate agents is to be launched, which experts say will lead to a rise in standards in the business.

According to the National Association of Estate Agents (NAEA), most estate agents are reputable, but anyone can start up as an estate agent in the UK without qualifications or formal checks.

The new scheme was described by housing minister, Grant Shapps, as a symbolic moment, while the NAEA said it hopes the scheme will represent honesty for agents.

The launch of the scheme means an estate agent will need to have the necessary level of professional indemnity insurance, be bound by the NAEA agents' rules of conduct and commit to undertaking 12 hours of training on the latest developments every year.

Those who are found to be breaking the rules could end up at a tribunal, or thrown out of the scheme.

Peter Bolton King, chief executive of the NAEA, said: "From today, estate agency in the UK is a two-tiered industry – those agents who are licensed and those who are not."

"I think the public will welcome the distinction, and I believe that this move will raise standards across the industry."

Elderly forced to sell up to pay for care homes

SOME 20,000 pensioners across the UK are being forced to sell their homes to pay for residential care every year.

According to a recent survey, the number of elderly property owners having to sell up so they can go into a care home stands at almost 60 per day; a third of those funding their own care end up without a house. This is an increase of 17 per cent since 2005.

The recent cuts to local authority budgets mean that this situation is unlikely to improve. Furthermore, FirstStop Advice states that care home fees have risen by more than 20 per cent over the past five years – making the current average £25,896.

Those who don't have savings or property to sell get their care paid for by the state.

This has sparked anger among many, who argue that the system is unfair and makes lifelong saving pointless, as well as meaning that families won't receive any inheritance.

Make most of interest rates, before they rise

■ BY NICK AMES

INTEREST rates on mortgages are set to increase, and cheap mortgages are unlikely to stick around for long, according to the consultancy Ducalian.

Research by Sainsbury's Home Insurance revealed that the cost of running a home had fallen by almost 14 per cent in the past two years, and now stands at around £8,059 a year.

Timothy Lambert, head of consulting at Ducalian, said that most people would be rather surprised by the figures.

However, he said: "Lots of local authorities have frozen council tax and some boroughs such as Hammersmith & Fulham have actually lowered them, year on year."

Mr Lambert went on to say that the main reason was that mortgages were currently cheap for many, which "vastly sways" the statistics.

"But rates will rise over the course of the next few years as interest rates rise and cheaper products that run for a fixed period come to an end," he warned.

The annual cost of running a home, estimated by Sainsbury's Home Insurance, equates to £155 a week, or £22.08 a day, per household.

In 2008, household expenses were found to be almost £1,300 higher, at £9,324 a year.

Meanwhile the market continues to be uncertain.

Housebuilder Taylor Wimpey said it had experienced a homebuyer slowdown, as a result of the Government's spending cuts, which it claims has deterred potential buyers.

Its comments echo those of Persimmon, who said there was little evidence of the traditional autumn period, which usually sees families flock to new housing developments as the school summer holidays end.

However, Taylor Wimpey, which is the UK's second largest homebuilder by volume, said it expects annual profit at the higher end of estimates, boosted by "stable" trading, and an agreement reached on a new £950 million credit facility.

The company, which was formed by the merger of Taylor Woodrow and George Wimpey, said: "We expect to enter 2011 with a solid order book, and we remain focused on our strategy of maximising margins and returns, rather than looking to accelerate volume growth."

Many housebuilders have expressed their concern that the ongoing lack of mortgage availability, particularly to first-time buyers, continues to be a "major obstacle" and is holding back the recovery of the housing market.

It's curtains for wasted energy

RESIDENTS of period properties are being told they can reduce their energy bills by closing their curtains or shutters at dusk.

Researchers claim it could be as effective as fitting double glazing and lead to significant savings.

The World Heritage Trust has been using thermal imaging cameras to show residents of old and new homes how best to cut their bills.

The project has demonstrated a traditional, decidedly low-tech approach can be highly effective.

Windows with the shutters and curtains closed show up in the images in a deep blue colour, demonstrating little heat is escaping.

Windows with the shutters and curtains open burn bright, in oranges and reds, showing that much more heat and money is being wasted.

The team behind the project said other traditional techniques were valuable too, and anyone living in a period property should not overlook the importance of draught excluders.

Chiara Ronchini, energy efficiency officer for the trust, said: "We know that improving energy efficiency in historic buildings is very important if we're to reduce carbon emissions and alleviate fuel poverty.

"There are issues, of course, with historic buildings, but they are so well designed that they just need a little push to make sure that they are performing as well as the most modern buildings.

"The thermal imaging exercise really proved that very simple measures, like closing shutters at night or using full-length curtains, can have a dramatic effect and make a dramatic improvement on the amount of heat being lost through the windows."

Operations Manager Psychological Therapy Services

£38,042 – £45,202 plus Essential Car User Allowance of up to £1,239 per annum
37 hours per week • Based East Kent and Medway

KCA (UK) Psychological Therapy Providers (PTP) provide a wide range of high quality, innovative primary care mental health services which are ranked within the top 25% nationally. Combining clinical expertise, a wide range of high-quality provision and constantly improving effectiveness, our psychological therapy services have achieved significant growth including the award of major new contracts in Kent, Surrey and Havering in recent years.

Your role will be to lead the ongoing development of the service and to ensure that all contractual obligations are achieved across East Kent. In addition to managing the teams working across the area, you will build strong professional relationships with commissioning bodies and partnership organisations. You will create a team-focused ethos within the service and support staff to promote sustained delivery improvements.

Whilst you do not need to be a qualified Psychological Therapist, you must bring an in-depth understanding of current psychological therapy practices. Knowledge and understanding of the Improving Access to Psychological Therapies (IAPT) initiative would be an advantage. Proven management experience ideally gained in a similar setting is essential, combined with a self-motivated approach, first-rate communication skills and the ability to influence thinking at all levels.

If you have the ambition to make this high-potential role your own, you will enjoy the real opportunity to make a major impact on our future.

CHALLENGE: Steve Butler wants to build confidence in the side

'There's no magic formula to success'

MAIDSTONE United assistant manager Steve Butler says there is no magic formula for success but building confidence among the players will be key in avoiding relegation this season.

The former Gillingham and Stones striker is enjoying his return to the club as part of Andy Ford's management team and is relishing the challenge of keeping the club in the Ryman Premier League.

Butler brings a vast amount of experience to the job after holding coaching positions at Stevenage, Hull City and Leicester, as well as having coached in the Ryman Premier with Ramsgate. Despite working at the highest level in English football, he says his coaching approach for Maidstone United, who are in the relegation zone, is no different.

He said: "I think you will always get a group of 16 players which are similar no matter what club you are at. There will be the shy ones, the confident ones and the talented ones, but the only difference between the leagues is the amount of talent they have. There is no magic formula for success. As a coach you have to try and get the best out of all the players whether it is the Premier League or not, so the job isn't really different.

"We know we are not scoring enough and letting in stupid goals, but I think confidence is a factor and something we have to work on. It's strange to see the reaction when a side scores a goal or concedes. The club has not been winning a lot of games for a while and this can become a habit just like winning is a habit."

FAST TRACK: Bulls through to the fourth round

Bulls step closer to Twickenham after receiving a cup bye

AYLESFORD Bulls moved a step closer to a dream Twickenham final after receiving a bye to the Intermediate Cup fourth round.

The Bulls were due to play Bognor in the third round on Saturday, but the Sussex side were forced to pull out of the fixture after failing to fulfil the required five front row forwards for the game.

Although the Bulls are yet to discover who their opponents are for the fourth round of the competition, vice-chairman Neil Wiltshire believes his side has a real chance of success in the competition.

He said: "Obviously we are pleased to be in the next round.

"We are not quite sure who we will face in the next round, but the teams that are left in the cup are all of our level and beatable. I think we can go quite far in the competition."

With number eight Dion Hurinui unlikely to make a return to the first XV this season after breaking his leg in last week's game against Old Dunstonians, the club have moved quickly to sign Lordswood back row Lee Evans.

Hurinui was set to have a further scan on his injury this week, but is expected to be sidelined for at least three months.

Aylesford return to London 2 South East action on Saturday when they host Old Mid-Whitgiftians.

CHANGING FACES: Stones boss Andy Ford is hoping to bring in four new players to join his first three signings Cedric Abraham, Danny Lye and Dean Hill who joined the club in October

Ford wants new fab four to ease Stones' relegation woes

ANDY Ford hopes to make four more signings to shake up his Maidstone United squad in a bid to move away from the Ryman Premier drop zone.

With his side languishing in the bottom four and desperately in need of points, the Stones boss is keen to add to his squad and feels four more players are required to help turn the club's fortunes around.

Since taking charge of the club in October, Ford has brought in defender Dean Hill on loan from Dover Athletic, midfielder Danny Lye from Faversham Town, and Cedric Abraham from Fisher. However, more new faces could be on the way this week.

Ford said: "I will keep on the look out for players and we probably need around four.

"I would like to bring in fresh faces, but we have a tight budget so I may have to shuffle things around. If we had top dollar money then it would be fairly easy to bring players in."

FOOTBALL

■ BY TOM HOWARD

Scoring goals remains to be a problem for United this season and Ford has moved quickly to try and resolve that by handing a trial to former Bromley and Billericay Town striker Tony Boot. The 27-year-old has spent some time away from the game, but has impressed in the Ryman Premier in the past.

Ford said: "I'm having a look at Tony, but I wouldn't say it was a full-blown new signing just yet. I have known him for a long time and he is a real finisher in the six-yard box, but he has been out of the game for a while with injuries. I don't think he has played at all this season so we are going to have a look at him."

Maidstone were due to make the long trip to Suffolk to take on Lowestoft Town in the league on Saturday, but the game was postponed due to a frozen pitch.

Weather permitting, the club are expecting one of their largest gates of the season when neighbours Tonbridge Angels travel to Homelands on Saturday.

Ford said: "Every game is big at the moment and we need to start putting together a couple of wins to start moving away from the relegation zone."

• The Stones were due to host Kingstonian at Homelands last night. Log on to www.yourmaidstone.co.uk for match details.

Maidstone await RFU action as eye-gouge player cleared

RUGBY

BY STEVE TERVET

MAIDSTONE will find out this week whether the Rugby Football Union will take action against them for the “deliberate” gouge which blinded an opposition player in one eye.

Clarence Harding suffered the injury playing for Gravesend against Maidstone in a Kent Cup tie on January 17.

The RFU hearing, held last week, cleared Maidstone player Matt Iles of the offence, but ruled that Harding had not been the victim of a tragic accident.

Although they recognised Harding had been deliberately gouged, no individual was proved to be the assailant.

Judge Jeff Blackett, who sat on the three-man panel, said: “The injury was caused by a deliberate act of a Maidstone player. We are unable to determine who that was so we are therefore going to place our findings before the RFU company secretary and legal officer to determine whether Maidstone Rugby Club should be brought to account.”

In response to the ruling, Maidstone released a statement stressing no hard evidence had been found to implicate any of their players.

Club chairman Andy Golding added: “If I ever suspected anybody of doing anything like this, they would metaphorically hang from

HIT AND RUN: Clarence Harding runs out for Gravesend before the eye-gouging incident which forced him to retire the nearest lamp post. People will think there's no smoke without fire, but we have kept our silence so as not to prejudice the investigations.

“Bearing in mind we've been through our own investigation, a CID investigation and now two RFU hearings, nothing's been found and we've done everything in our power to help those bodies.”

It is unclear exactly what form the RFU's punishment could take, although Maidstone could be hit with a fine, points deduction or even relegation if found guilty.

Harding, meanwhile, has vowed to launch legal action and said he was disappointed with the outcome of the hearing, having eventually lost his job as a result of the injury.

“Because the RFU are going to sanction Maidstone, I will seek legal advice for a civil action,” the 27-year-old said.

“They're not questioning the severity – the fact there was a gouge is beyond all reasonable doubt. The gouge victim, me, paid the ultimate price for the gouge, but what they want to know is who did it. If it wasn't him, it was someone else.

“When it happened I took four months off work and I then had to quit my job because I was a health and safety risk.”

Jones: Focus on Kent's youth not promotion

GERAINT Jones has hinted that Kent's focus might not be entirely on promotion back to Division One of the County Championship next year.

Kent were relegated on the final day of the season, despite victory against Yorkshire at Headingley, in a campaign that was blighted by injury and then unrest in the dressing room as a result of the club's financial concerns.

Fears the county were going to sell-off their best players were quickly played down and the club are now cautiously optimistic of adding a player or two before the start of next season.

Skipper Rob Key will still be operating with a small squad with the emphasis on developing the county's young talent, and it is for that reason that Jones, the Kent wicketkeeper, believes a season of consolidation in Division Two might not be such a bad thing.

“I think the plan is always to win the competition you are in and that means going straight up to Division One, but it depends a bit on injuries and we do have a reduced squad,” he said.

“I don't think it's a bad thing if we have more than one season in Division Two to help those younger players who have been given a chance. I think it showed last year we were not strong enough to compete in Division One regularly enough. If we can have a year or two developing youngsters and then make a big push, that should be an option.”

“There were a few outside issues that affected us perhaps more than we realised, but the good thing is that's behind us.”

The 34-year-old watched on as his teammates expressed their concern at the departure of Amjad Khan towards the end of the season, but the 2005 Ashes winner signalled his intent to stay and fight from the outset.

“If anything it made me want to stay with Kent more,” he said.

“I want to stay and help these youngsters and bring them on because Kent will be going long beyond my career. I was pretty disappointed to hear that people were willing to jump ship and leave.

“I'm happy the guys have now realised we are in better shape and are deciding to stay.”

FIXTURES (Saturday):

Ryman Premier League: Maidstone United v Tonbridge Angels

SIGHTS: Steve Mercer is confident he will be riding in the prestigious Isle of Man TT, but has no team as yet

Mercer wants island return

SUPERBIKE rider Steve Mercer is confident he will be on the grid for next year's prestigious Isle of Man TT.

The Maidstone-born racer finished 27th at the famous TT road race on the Isle of Man in June this year and plans are well under way for a return to the island in 2011.

The TT is one of the most dangerous motorsport events in the world and sees bikers navigate a 37.7-mile road course reaching speeds in excess of 170mph.

Mercer, 28, is eager to tackle the island's roads again, although is yet to secure a ride for next season.

He said: “Racing in the British Superbike

MOTORSPORT

Championship is great, but it is road racing that gives me the real buzz. I should be racing at the Isle of Man TT next year, but it is a case of who I will be racing for at this stage.

“I have been talking to two or three teams about next year and I hope to have something agreed by mid January.

“I've had a fairly good campaign this season with several top-ten finishes which is good, but I really want to challenge the top factory riders.”

ATHLETICS

Cross-country runners ready for park race

ATHLETES from Medway & Maidstone AC are set to make the trip to New Barn Park, Swanley for the fourth meeting of the Kent Cross Country League this weekend.

They go up against hundreds of Kent athletes at noon on Saturday, all hoping to improve their rankings ahead of the final round at the same venue in February.

Medway & Maidstone are well-placed in the men's championship with two athletes in contention for the title. Adrian Lowther and Tom Collins are joint fourth in the table, just 11 points behind leader Alex Bruce-Littlewood of Blackheath & Bromley AC.

In the women's competition, a strong performance from second-placed Helena Penfold and Ejiro Okoro in fourth spot could see them overhaul leader Deirdre McDermot from Tonbridge AC ahead of the deciding round.
